SUMMARY

Banat area is representing an important Romanian viticultural area which has a long tradition and an exquisite experience in vine culture. The most important Banat's viticultural areas are: Recas, Buzias-Silagiu, Tirol-Jamu Mare, Teremia and Moldova Noua. The ecological conditions of these viticultural areas are favorable and very favorable for grape vine cultivation, for white wine varieties and also for red wine varieties. During last years time period besides well known viticultural exploitations appeared new ones as a result of high investments which are made in the last few years Banat's area. All new plantations are made using modern technologies which allow mechanization of a high proportion of the maintaining works, in the context in which qualified work force is harder and harder to find. In table 1 are presented few exploitations from Banat's viticultural areas and the most important cultivated varieties.
